THE KING-O'NEIL TRAGEDY.

Conclusion of the Testimony for the Prosecution-Story of the Shooting as Told by Mrs. O'Neil-Opening for the Defence-Epilepsy in the King Famtly-Mrs. King and O'Neil's Intimacy. Pretty good headway was made yesterday in the trial of James C. King for the alleged murder of Anthony F. O'Netl. A larger crowd than on any day since the commencement of the trial filled the Oyer and Terminer court room. Among the throng of curious spectators were more ladies than heretolore. In fact the crowd was so large it required an extra force of officers to keep it from filling the to an inconvenient excess. No change shows itself in the demeanor of the prisoner. He sat quietly by his counsel, ex Judge Beach, William F. Howe and John O. Mott, and quite frequently cousulted them during the process of examining witnesses. For the prosecution the testimony con-cluded with that of Mrs. O'Neil, the widow of the murdered man. She recited her story in a plain, straightforward way, but at one stage of it was obliged to desist through being overcome by her emotions at the memory of the sad tragedy. The articles found on the deceased also produced in court, including a photograph of Mrs. King. After the defence had opened several witnesses were examined on their side. An uncle of the prisoner testified to epilepsy being largely prevalent in the family, Other witnesses gave interior glimpses of the prisoner's domestic life at Furner's Station on the rie Railroad, and the incentives to the homicide. All the material points of the testimony will be found in the subjoined report of yesterday's proceedings in court :-TESTIMONY OF WALTER S. LOGAN.

Walter S. Logan, a lawyer, who was clerk with Scudder & Co., the lawvers for King in his bankraptcy suit, was recalled. He testified that the Saturday before the shooting King called at their office, and the witness inquired about the progress of the two divorce suits; Logan then said O'Neil was testifying against him in the divorce suit of Mrs. King; that O'Neil was taking strong ground against him, and if this thing went on somebody would get hurt; he also made reference

Cross-examined by Mr. Beach-The conversation lasted five to ten minutes; the way it came to the ears of the District Attorney was this:-I was informed that one of the clerks in the office told the District Attorney about it; subsequently I

ARTICLES FOUN. ON O'NEIL.

Coroner Herrman was founded. He identified the keys, memorandum book at 1 photograph of Mrs. King found on the body of O'Neil. Mr. Beach offered the photograph in evidence, but it was excluded for the present. Mr. Beach also selected from the papers produced het he Coroner and offered in evidence a letter found in O'Neil's pocket, which was written to him by Mrs. King. It was excluded for the present. He also offered in evidence the following letter, written by Mrs. King, and found on the body of O'Neil:

Mr. O'Neil-Please call on Mr. Vanderpoel, of the firm of Brown, it all & Vanderpoel, and say that I cannot call on him personally, but sutherize you to act for me.

In looking over the papers found on O'Neil

In looking over the papers found on O'Neil counsel alighted on one which contained what, at first glance, appeared something mysterious and starting. He read it for the jury with great emphasis, but it turned out to be a prescription for curing the mange in dogs, "to be rubbed in when the hair is thin and the skin dry and hard." There was also found in O'Neil's pocketbook a narrow strip of new-paper, on one side of which was an advertisement of a pawnbroker's sale, and on the other this "personal:"—
I was on, hand promptly on Friday evening, and you they related to papers read and put in by the defence. Those now handed in were principally newspaper culppings. They were excluded, as having no bearing on the case.

Joseph Long testified that he was office boy in Judge Sutherland's office when the shooting took place; he saw all the parties leave the room after the reference, except king, Judge Sutherland and himself. King went after them; three shots were fired, and king came back and handed a pistol to Judge Sutherland, who left the room to get an officer; while witness and king were together in the room there were shouts heard outside; witness looked out of the window and saw a large crowd; the prisoner also looked out, and then passed into the private room, where he was, with the door shut, when the officer arrived.

After a while his wife ceased to look on him with the eyes of love. It occurred to him that O'Neil's presence was fatal to the peace of his family. His suspictions became confirmed by ereof a ter proof that he was a dishonored mah, and the lips which kessed min when he into the home were dishonored him. Mr. Howe went on to say that they would prove that O'Neil entered, besides this, into a kind of conspiracy against King: that the prisoner's wife and children were taken from him and he commenced an action for seduction against O'Neil and an action for divorce against his wife, and that after this O'Neil once asked him, "King, how is your mental agony?" It would also be snown that members of the prisoner's amily had been of unsound mind and were subject to epilectic fits, and that poor King himsell was subject to those fits; and if a strong mind might well give way under such wrongs as his, how much more a mind naturally unable to bear up against such a strain!

Mr. Howe's brief but touching address was histened to with the most carnest attention by the jury and all present. The Court at its conclusion took a recess.

Evidence for the Defence.

Evidence for the Defence.

TESTIMONY OF AUGUSTUS G. KING.

The first witness examined for the defence was Augustus G. King, the prisoner's uncle, who was examined by Mr. Join O. Mott. He testified that the prisoner's father, George C. King, is now in San Francisco; the mother of witness died from railing of a chair and bursting a blood vessel; Corneins, sister of witness, has fits; she has been troubled with "speils" these thirty years; she kind o' lowers down the chin, then she gets worse and has to go to bed, and she iroths at the mouth and they have to hold her during the "spells," as the children call them; her hands are clenched and she seems to be gone some way or another; she had these fits since she was six weeks old. Witness also testified that a brother of the defendant had "fits" from his childhood and died in one of them; the prisoner's aunt, Corneha, was "ugly" after the life; she thought to burn the house once.

BRINGING COUNSEL TO TERMS.

Bringing counsel to terms.

Here a sight passage at arms took place between Mr. Beach and Mr. Phelps as to the admission of testimony.

Judge Brady said this discussion was unprofessional and discourteous to the Court. In future if any objections were made to evidence he would insist on counsel rising and stating them.

The witness went on to speak of numerous other relatives of the prisoner, uncles, aunts and brothers.

relatives of the prisoner, uncles, aunts and brothers.

TESTIMONY OF ADRIAN S. JOLINE.
Adrian S. Joline, a lawyer, now connected with Judge Leonard's office, testified that in 1872 h. was employed in the office of Brown, Hall & Vand. r. poel; in November the prisoner came and asked him to go down to Judge Sutherland's office and adjourn a case for alm; this was the morning of the homicide; witness told him he was engaged and could not go; about twelve o'clock he met King in the Court House and King again importuned him to go, and he advised King to go down and adjourn it himself; King then started to go, saying "All right" or something of the kind.

TESTIMONY OF JOIN C. BOYD.

John C. Boyd, a physician practising in New Jersey, near Turner's Station, on the Erie road, where the prisoner resided, testified that shortly after the prisoner's wife and children left him he called on witness and said he had met with domestic difficulties and had passed some sleepless nights and he wanted a prescription to make him sleep; witness prescribed chloral; the prisoner had an anxious, troubled look.

TESTIMONY OF HENRY MAY.

Henry May, druggist, testified to selling the prisoner solution of chioral twice in July, 1872, on the prescription of Dr. Boyd.

THE INTIMACY OF MES. KING AND MR. O'NEIL.

Mr. Beach here stated that in regard to the intimacy of Mrs. King and Mr. O'Neil he would show the existence of the behef in the prisoner's mind that the intimacy was improper. They would go no further than to show the circumstances which would operate on the mind of a susceptible and jea.ous husband, without touching the question whether the relation between the parties was really improper or not. The existence of that belief in the prisoner's mind the prisoner's mind would be proved by various circumstances.

Mr. Phelps objected to any evidence of circumstances which did not come to the prisoner's mind.

Mr. Beach said he was taken by surprise. There was a discrepancy between this offer and the opening for the defence.

Judge Brady said he would exclude circumstances not proved to have been communicated to the prisoner or which fell under his observation.

TESTIMONY OF JOHN HORN.

John Horn was then called to the stand, and an offer was made by the defence to prove by him the public nature of the relations between Mrs. King and Mr. O'Neil in the summer of 1872; that, for instance, they were in the habit of publicly walking together.

The evidence was excluded, unless these circumstances proved to have been communicated to the prisoner in some way.

Testimony of Agnes Gray.

Agnes Gray, who resides at Turner's Station, testifled that she was laundress in Mr. King's lamily in 1871 and 1872; Ml. and Mrs. O'Neil lived near them; Mr. King did not live much at home; Mr. O'Neil used to call in Mr. King's absence; white he was in the house somewhere else witness would remain in the kitchen with the children, while Mr. O'Neil and Mrs. King would be together alone in some other part of the house; sometimes he would remain longer than at other times; witness never told Mr. King about this; she did not tell any one else what she knew. The boy Joe told her what he knew; he was a servant there.

TESTIMONY OF JOSEPH TOWNZELL.

Joseph Townzell was then called, and a mulatto about six feet high strode into Court. He was asked his name, and no one could make it out from his pronunctation. He was asked to spell it. He said, bursting into a laugh, "I spells it, T-o-u-i-e-s." (Great laughter.) Finally Judge Brady discovered that the name was Townzell. The witness was servant in King's family: Mr. King used to be away a day or so at a time; Mr. O'Neil used to call in Mr. King absence two or three times a day and remain in the parior with Mrs. King; he told Mr. King about it belore Mr. O'Neil's death.

Elis Harre—Was conductor on the Erie Railway in 1872; he frequently saw Mr. O'Neil and Mrs. King on the train, and Mr. King; after the rumor about the trouble he saw Mr. O'Neil and Mrs. King travelling alone.

TESTIMONY OF A. J. VANDERFOKL.

Aaron J. Vanderpoel, counsellor-at-law, testified that his office performed some business for Mr. King in 1872; on the day of the shooting Mr. King called at the office and asked him to go to the referee and get it adjourned; Mr. Smith, one of the partners, who used to act for King, was in Albany, and witness told King he should find one of the clerks to go down with him and adjourn it; he knew Mr. King as a client for several years; has neard that Mr. King was admitted to the Bar, but never saw his sign out; from the declarations of King witness knew that he was aware in a social way of O'Neil's frequent visits to his house.

The Court here adjourned till this morning, the jury, as before, being sent to Sweeny's Hotel under charge of officers.

SUPREME COUNT-CROUIT-PART 2. Singular Suit for Payment of Railroad Bond Coupons.

Before Judge Freedman. In 1870 Messrs. Bailey & Lang sold fourteen $1,000 gold bearing bonds of the Chicago, Danville and Vincennes Railroad Company, and received in pay-Yonkers, signed by E. B. Yates and drawn to the order of W. A. Ogden. The check purported to be certified, but subsequently the certification proved to be a forgery, and, further, that Mr. Yates had no account in the Yonkers bank. Meantime notices were issued cautioning parties against taking the bonds. In 1873 Messrs. W. P. and Joseph D. Meredith bournt nine of the bonds of a broker in this city and alterwards discovered the fraud in connection with them. They applied to the railroad company for payment of the coupons, and, this being denied, brought suit against the company on four of the bonds as a test case. The case was tried yesterday in this Court and resulted in a verdict for the full amount claimed. Albert Stickney for plaintiffs and Sorer & Wheeler for desendants.

Managerial Dispute Over the Present Engagement in This City of Mmc. Before Judge Robinson. Grau and Rullman, the well-known operatio nanagers, have been engaged in a slight legal disputation. Mr. Grau claims that in January last he ormed a partnership with Rullman to engage artists, including Mme. Lucca, for operatic performances in this city and elsewhere, the profits of which they were to share equally. He avers further that, while the negotiations were pending for the engagement of Mme. Lucca, Mr. Rudiman, without his knowledge, went to Havana, and there entered into a contract with her under his own name, and that in pursuance of this contract she is now performing in this city. Upon these statements Mr. Gran applied to Judge Robinson for a dissolution of the partnership and an accounting of the profits, and also that an injunction issue against Mr. Rullman to prevent his interference with the profits, and that a receiver be appointed. Mr. Rullman put in a general demail to the allegations contained in the complaint, and insisted that no attention should artists, including Mme. Lucca, for operatic perform complaint, and insisted that no attention should be paid to the propositions of Mr. Grau. Judg. Robinson, after hearing the argument and exam-ining the papers, denied the motion. Decisions.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS-TRIAL TERM-PART L Receipts in Fall for Services for the City a Bar to Further Claims. Before Judge Loew.

Lorenzo Oberle, during the years 1869 and 1870, was keeper of Madison square. When he entered on his duties the compensation was $3 a day. In February, 1869, the Common Council raised the pay to $100 a month; but the Comptroller "would not see the raise." Operle continued to accept pay to $100 a month; but the Comptroller "would not see the-raise." Oberle continued to accept the $3 per diem pay, and sign a receipt in full for services. He brought suit, how ever, for the difference, and the case was tried yesterday in this Court, Mr. Josepa H. Fisher a pearing for the plaintiff and Assistant Counse to the Corporation Dean and Forbes for the city. The defence was that signing the receipts in full will a bar to any further claim. The jury took this view of the case and rendered a verdict for the city.

COURT OF CENERAL SESSIONS. Trial of Woodhuil and Claft.a for Alleged Libel. Before Judge Sutherland.

The trial of Victoria Woodhull, Tennic C. Cladin and James H. Blood was continued jes.erday. Anthony Comstock was the principal witness, and testified that he went to the office of the defend ants, in Broad street, and purchased a copy of their Weekly which contained the alleged libelious article charging Luther B. Challis with immoral conduct in seducing young girls who accomp him to the French ball at the Academy of Mu: Judge Fullerton, who conducts the prosecution, read a lengthy article from the Weekly to show the motive of the accused in publishing the old Judge Fullerton, who conducts the prosecution, read a lengthy article from the Weekly to show the motive of the accused in publishing the alleged libel. The prosecution having rested, Mr. Brooke proceeded to open the case for the degence, claiming that the article charged to be libelious against Challis was published to serve good and laudable ends. Counsel commented upon the fact that such distinguished private counsel had been called in to supplant the able District Attorney and his assistants in vindicating the character of Mr. Challis, and expressed the bope that the jury would never require so much force and ability to vindicate their characters. He proposed to force the counsel to put Challis on the stand, and would prove the truth of the contents of the article by Mrs. Woodhul and other witnesses. The counsel's address was frequently applicated by the spectators who thronged the court room.

Alexander D. Barber, a resident of Pennsylvania, was the first witness. He testified that he was at the French ball held in the Academy of Jusic in January, 1872; that he hired a private box. In who were charged with stealing clothing valued at $36, the property of Henry Hammel, pleaded at $50, the property of heavy nammer, pleaded guilty to petty laiceny. Mary Leonard, also pleaded guilty to the same offence, having been charach with stealing $4 from Juna Tracy. These prisoners were each sent to the Pententiary for six months. John Hurley and John Dalcy (loys) pleaded guilty to stealing, on the 20th of February, $23 from W. W. Dikeman. They were sent to the House of Refuge.

Jenny Y. Jennings, of No. 41 West Twenty-nimth street, compiained that on Thursday afternoon, woile passing through Broadway, near Twenty-first street, Hilton snatched room her belt her gold waten, worth $75, and ran of with it. Roundsman Magan heard Miss Jennings' outry and pursued Hitton, whom he arrested, and iound in his possession the watch taken from Miss Jennings. The accused requested that the case might be set down for examination. The Court refused, and heid him in default of $2,000 ball for trial.

Samuel Mcclelland, of No. 310 East Thirty-ninth street, complained that Michael Berry, of 137th street and Sixth avenue, obtained from him a horse valued at $300 by means of trick and de-vice, and now refuses to pay to complainant the value of the horse. The case was set down for examination at the request of the accused.

The Assailant of William T. Connor. It will be remembered that on the 21st of Febru ary a boy, named William T. O'Connor, residing at No. 882 Third avenue, was stabbed during a quarrel with other boys in East Forty-first street. Thomas Norton, the boy alleged to have cut O'Connor, succeeded in cluding arrest file yesterday. When he was found on the west side of the city by betective Fallon, of the Twenty-first precinct. He was taken before the wounded boy, who now hes in a cangerous condition in Belleviae Hospital, which he will probably never leave. O'Connor identified Norton as the boy who had stabbed him. He was brought to court and held to await the result of O'Connor's injuries. Thomas Corcoran, another boy, from whom it is said Norton got the knife with which he did the stabbing, was also committed to prison, more as a witness, however, than as a prisoner. rel with other boys in East Forty-first street,

BROOKLYN COURTS.

SUPTEME COURT-SPECIAL TERM. A Child Scalded.

Before Judge Gilbert. James McGarry, as guardian, brought a suit against John L. Loomis and others, to recover $15,000 for injuries to his son, aged about four years. The delendants are proprietors of a saw mill in the lower part or Nevins street, South mill in the lower part of Nevins street, South Brooklyn, and in front of their establishment was a pool of hot water which came from the inside and sent up a cloud of steam about the sidewalk. One day in March last young McGarry fell into the pool and was so badly scalded that he was laid up for six months. He has not yet fully recovered. This is the case for plaintiff. The defence is a general denial and negligence on the derendantsy part, and contributive negligence on the part of the boy. They claim further that his sufferings were increased by improper treatment.

Foreclosing a Morrange.

Foreclosing a Mortgage. Before Judge Pratt.

Wisner H. Townsend et al. vs. Andrew Mount et al .- In this suit a motion was made for a permapent injunction to restrain defendants from fore. closing a chattel mortgage. The plaintiffs were engaged in manufacturing woollen cloths and shawis in Orange county, and sent goods to the defendants (who are suctioneers in New York) to be sold. The plaintiffs claimed Yors) to be sold. The plaintiffs claimed that the defendants, in accordance with the usual custom, made advances to the consignors, and to secure such advances as might be made plaining gave them a chattel mortgage on the machinery and fixtures in their mills, the consideration being expressed at $100,000. The property on which the mortgage is a lien plaintiffs value at about $30,000. Plaintiffs also made a mortgage on their share of certain real estate occupied by the mill buildings, &c.; the consideration expressed in this mortgage was $100,000, and the value of the property conveyed was $30,000.

mili buildings, &c.; the consideration expressed in this mortgage was $100,000, and the value of the property conveyed was $30,000.

They further allege that the agreement was that defendants were to make advances on the goods which might be sent to them for sale on commission, and that since then some $200,006 worth of goods have been so sent and that plaintiffs are not indepted to delendants to the amount of $100,000—in fact, if there were a settlement of accounts, defendants would probably be the debtors.

However, on the 6th of December 1873, Simon A. Stern, attorney for defendants, demanded from plaintiffs the immediate payment of the $100,000 named in the chattel mortgage, and in default thereof assumed to occupy the property described in and covered by the mortgage and had a notice of sale published in one or more newspapers of Orange county.

This present suit is brought to have defendants permanently restrained from foreclosing the aloresaid chattel mortgage and for the purpose of having an accounting between the purities.

The defendants claimed that plaintiffs were $200,000 behind, less $30,800 of unadjusted sales; that the foreclosure and seizure were made by consent and that they defendants) have been in undisputed possession for some months.

The motion for a permanent lujunction was denied, and the temporary injunction was vacated, with $10 costs.

CORONERS' CASES.

A Fractured Skull and Death.

A week or more since John Fichter, a German, thirty-two years of age, who for some time previously had been missed by his relatives, living at No. 379 Bleecker street, was sent up to the Charity No. 379 Bleecker street, was sent up to the Charity Hospital. His mind seemed confused, and, among other strange and inconsistent statements made by Fighter, he said he had been run over by a train of cars. He evidently had been injured in some manner, and, growing worse, died on the 4th inst. How Fighter received the injuries—racture of the skull—which resulted in his death is a matter to be determined by Coroner Kessler and his deputy, Dr. Leo, who are engaged in making an investigation.

The jury found "that deceased came to his death by tracture of the skull, caused by maining on the sidewalk, from the effects of a push or blow, while under the influence of liquor, by Patrick Pickett." On the above verdict Mr. Oliver, counsel for Pickett, moved for his discharge, but Coroner Croker decided to noid him in $1,500 bail, to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Coroner Croker was yesterday called to No. 648 Second avenue to hold an inquest on the body of Lizzie Granden, an infant, nineteen months old whose death resulted from exhaustion due to ex-cessive vomiting, caused by eating the phosphorus from some matches with which she was at play on Wednesday afternoon. # REAL ESTATE BROKERS' COMMISSIONS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HEBALD :-Some time since a bill was introduced into the Legislature providing that no broker shall be entitled to charge a commission on the sale of real estate unless he can show a written contract of employment and agreement for compensation; also providing that in an exchange of property a commission may be collected from both parties by the broker when there is a previous distinct understanding among all parties that such is to be

As no broker can now obtain more than one pe cent commission on the sale of city property, nor more than two and one-naif per cent commission on the sale of country property, unless he can prove a special contract to pay more, and as he can recover nothing except he can prove he was employed to sell the property; and further, as the courts have already decided that the broker has a right on an exchange to collect brokerage from both parties, with full knowledge all around that such is to be the case, which decision is in perfect accord with justice, reason and common sense, is it not wrong and ridiculous to encumeer the statute with useless, injurious and troublesome class legislation?

common sense, is not wrong and rincinous and troublesome class legislation?

Would it not be much better while this Legislature is in session to repeat the unjust and senseless law, water absolutely prombins a broker from receiving more than one-half of one per cent commission for negotiating a loan "for one year," when, as is well known, the regular rate is one per cent on city and two and one-half per cent on country property, or five times the legal rate, the service being well worth these rates in an open market, especially as the Superior and Supreme courts have both wrongfully decided, despite the statutory restriction to loans for "one year," "that whether a loan be for a year or for a term of years, one-half of one per cent is the legal rate," and as also this is the only State in the Union that puts any restriction on the right of a broker to make a special contract for his service? ### THE IRISH ELECTIONS. TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD :-

In your interesting letter in vesterday's HERALD on the late general election in Ireland a typographical error occurs which to a large extent spoils the paragraph containing it. Your correspondent's remarks are made to read :- "In county Down Mr. James Shadman Renford triumphantly won his seat against all the influence of landlordism," &c. By the error in the name many of your readers will be unable to discover Mr. James Sharman Craw.ord, son of the "mather of tenant rigat" in Ireland, the late Mr. William Snarman Crawford, who represented Rochalae, in England, in the British Parti.ment for several years. The erder Crawford contested Down county and successibility three times, but then the ballot was not in operation. Now that secret voting is the law of the land the tables are turned, and the "giorious twenty-nine" of Ulster—as the North of Ireland conservative phalanx has been called—has been sadly reduced. Newry, Coleraine, Tyrone county, Derry county and Down county have returned six liberals to seats formerly held by tories, while Carrickiergus holds tast to Daiway, also a liberal, who was o poswed by the entire influence of the Downshire family, who have held it as a pocket borough for generations. The most important victory, however, for the liberals has been in Down county, which has heretofore been impregnable to ideral assauits.

HOW TO GET BID OF SNOW.

NEW YORK, March 5, 1874. TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

It is rather late in the season to talk of snow, but as the preparatory work must be done in streets free of it for the future.

The idea is to have in a basement at or near every other crossing a boiler driving steam a block each way, so that one boiler supplies four blocks, each way, so that one boiler supplies four blocks, through pipes laid under the pavement and side-walk to keep them warm during a snow storm. The expenses would be cleared by letting out power and heat. Many would hire power that would not put in a boiler and engine for one hoistway. Very few snow storms range during the day, and when they do every utilizer of the steam would be willing to forego it for an hour or so at a time, while it was melting snow, which, it left on the ground, would cause a much greater delay for several days.
